Photo 2. View of the southern project area from the southern edge of the working area, facing westward.

Photo 3. View of Scotch thistles in a post-flowering condition, in the southern project area. Approximately 200 individuals observed.

Photo 4. View of the western project area from the southwestern corner facing northward. Gravel and cobble placed where water flows off of the well pad. This will need to be monitored and maintained when erosion occurs here.
